DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restriction

1. Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-21 in Paper No. 7 is acknowledged.

Priority

2. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Specification

3. The specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2812

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459

(1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35

U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103© and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kishii (US 5,227,339, dated 7/13, 1993) in view of Hidemitsu (JP2000150640, dated 11/6/98).

Kishii shows the methods substantially as claimed with an insulating layer 22 formed completely around the wafer including beveled edges (figure 10). A wiring layer shown I figure

Art Unit: 2812

11 will be formed subsequently as a device. The first insulating layer appears to have been planarized. A MISFET is formed.

Kishii lacks anticipation only in not teaching that there is a first and second insulating layer formed on two main surfaces of the substrate; thicknesses, cleaning and specific material of layers.

Hidemitsu teaches the separate formation of insulating layers on the front and back sides of the wafer. Although no beveled portion is formed, a device comparable to that formed in Kishii is shown.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have formed the insulating layer on the two main surfaces of the substrate I the method of Kishii, as taught in the method of Hidemitsu with the motivation that each layer serves its own function in aiding to getter impurities from the substrate and preventing current leaks due to metal contamination.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used CMP to planarize the insulating layer, to have used TEOS, silicon nitride or PECVD silicon oxide, and to have optimized thicknesses of the layers, as well as perform cleaning during the process with the motivation that depending on the device taking advantage of the SOI substrate, these layers would be conventionally used as insulating layers with their thicknesses. Cleaning would further serve to getter the impurities from the device area.
